

Figure 1 consists of two photographs of the experimental setup. Photograph (A) shows the top view of the device, which is a rectangular metal frame with two white tubes connected to the top. Photograph (B) shows the front view of the device, revealing internal components. Arrows indicate the flow of fluid from the tubes into the central area. The central area contains a white frame and a central white square. The device is labeled with numbers 1 through 7.

